

January 6, 2007

Dear Lamas and Students,

I hope this letter finds you all well. I am well and I have had a good year in retreat.

I write to you now about my post-retreat plans. My activity will be different now from what it was in the past. I will not be traveling from one Dharma center to another to give teachings, and after March 1, neither will my students. This means that the annual courses at Dag Shang Kagyu, Holy Island, Dechen Chöling, Karmê Chöling, and Dorje Denma Ling will not take place this year.

Sometime this spring, probably in April, I will travel to Seattle, U.S.A. I will stay there for some time. I am planning on holding a few courses in Seattle, and perhaps in other peaceful and secluded places, so that anyone who wants to can come there to meet me and receive my teachings. I will announce the schedule of these courses after I arrive in Seattle.

I wish you a happy new year and pray that your Dharma practice this year goes well, for the benefit of yourselves and others.

Sarva Mangalam,
Khenpo Tsültrim Gyamtso Rinpoche